Introducing Our New Baby Lamps

Jack Ryan

When Jack Ryan is not getting with every girl at Newark Academy, he is being recognized as an elite cross-country runner and golfer. Jack Ryan is a charismatic and focused kid. We anticipate big things from him in the future.

Kaleb Youngren

Mike Usatine's special talent: being a stand-up guy. Aside from being a four-year back-up goalie for NAMS, Mike is dedicated to everything he does and is a trusted, long-time friend of the current brothers. As a bonus, Mike knows every lyric to every Meek Mill verse in existence.

Kaleb Youngren is passionate about everything—athletics, academics, his freshman girlfriend, etc. There is little doubt that his passion for the brotherhood will be equally as strong. We hope and expect Kaleb to take advantage of role models like his real brother Kaibro, and pursue a path of excellence.

James McCullough

Tom Clancy wears cut-offs in the gym (children's size small), so we can't actually tell if he's as built as he looks. Regardless, he'll be adding the intimidation factor the brotherhood needs. Clancy is a dedicated student and baseball player who (perhaps most importantly) is a pretty nice guy.

Daniel right now has a ladyfriend, "not a girlfriend" but is really low-key about it so make sure to bug him about Tara.

About Pintobeanbro: Pintobeanbro is one of our esteemed founder lamps. In his senior year at NA, he created the Secret Society of the Silver Lamps with four friends and simple intentions: create something special. Four years later, he graduated from the McIntire School of Commerce at the University of Virginia; his experience was “actually fucking incredible.” Now a few years out of college, he “lives” in NYC, but if you went to his apartment, nobody would be home. Pintobeanbro is on the move.

Thoughts on NA

While you might not appreciate it at the time, it helps you figure out who you are. For those questioning if it's worth it—give it a few years.

Life Update:

After changing the world at Greentech Capital Advisors (a “green” investment bank), Christian is on to bigger and better things. Just last week, Christian put in his two-weeks notice. He has accepted an offer at Odyssey Investment Partners, a middle-market private equity firm (which just closed a $3.25 billion dollar investment fund) where he will be starting on August 1st. Pinto describes his time in investment banking as a “fucking grind and a half,” but “for some people, there’s a light at the end of the tunnel—it is important to be one of those people.” Gentleman, Christian Pinto has found the light. Perhaps more notably, he has about five months of freedom before he begins earning what is probably some obscene amount of money in August. His plan is simple: grab a camera, a backpack, a one way ticket to New Zealand, and go from there. He plans to hit South America, Europe, and perhaps Southeast Asia to round out the trip... but we wouldn’t be surprised if a few more continents were added to the itinerary along the way. Oh, and for those wondering: “coronavirus won’t stop this fucking adventure.”

Advice From One of Our Eldest Lamps (so listen to it):

- Constantly put yourself in a position of growth. Pintobeanbro found himself at Greentech not just because he’s a great guy and cares about the environment. He saw a growing sector, a growing company, a growing team. He took advantage.
- Always present yourself as a good guy who’s smart, hardworking, and personable. You never know when the impression you’ve made on others will come help you out or bite you in the ass. Pinto followed his own advice and got his new job with the help of an NA alum.

On the Brotherhood:

- Pintobeanbro envisioned the brotherhood being a global sphere of influence. All is going according to plan thus far.
- He hopes that no lamp will hesitate to reach out to another. “The best thing about the group is the people in it.”
- For the future: “It is important to choose young men who are good people deep down, even if they are sometimes assholes.”

What do you look for in a woman?

Adventurous, Half-Asian. “Obviously, they’ve gotta be a 10. I mean I won’t talk to them if they’re below an 8. 6 if I’m drunk. 5 if nobody’s looking.”

Note From the Writer:

Some girl at NA quoted Pintobeanbro in her IB Extended Essay. Lowkey famous guy.

Brother Feature | Soven Berry

Soven Bery | Sovenbro

NA Class 15' | SLS VIII

Basking Ridge

21

About Sovenbro: Soven recently graduated from USC's Marshall School of Business, and has now joined the workforce, putting his party days behind him (for the most part). In high school, when Soven wasn't hit sticking kids in football, he was a frequent writer for Bleacher Report and managed to get his articles on the front page a few times. Now, Soven currently lives in NYC.

Life Update:

Soven is an analyst at Cornerstone Research, an economic consulting firm that has offices all over the country. Soven interned with Cornerstone in LA, and now works in the NYC office. Soven does everything from litigation consulting to data analysis for the job. He believes his studies in undergraduate business gave him a very multifaceted outlook and holistic education that helps him thrive in the workforce today. He plans to work for a few more years before going to graduate school to get his MBA.

On the Brotherhood:

- Soven believes SLS serves as phenomenal outlet to maintain relationships and keep the younger and older guys connected
- Future ideas: To have NYC meet-ups at bars (for the older guys)
- Favorite SLS memory: Running into the Ratner family at at Roots during a SLS dinner there

Favorite NA memory

"Being able to chill in the senior corridor and L and shoot shit with my friends"

Advice to younger lamps

"Don't take everything so seriously. Of course you're focused on being successful but don't forget to take a step back and enjoy the moment your in"

What do you seek in a girlfriend?

Someone whos always down to do something. If she aint adventurous, she aint for Soven.
